At first meeting

New appointments win ASG approval

By CARTER PENCE

Appointments were confirmed to several positions as the Associated Student Government (ASG) yesterday held its first meeting of the 1972-73 school year.

Pat Long, a senior speech major from Franklin, Ohio, was unanimously approved by Congress as parliamentarian as was Louis Berman to the post of sergeant-at-arms.

Ten other Congress members also were given unanimous approval of Congress as members of the Rules and Elections Committee. They are chairman R. G. Meade, Robert Deboe, Joe Cheek, Albert Stith, Juanita Morrow, Evie Shrewsbury, Amy Beverly, Fred Price, Michael Inman and Don Morrison.

A motion by Kim Weaver that non-professional personal services not be included in total campaign spending limits was referred to the Rules and Elections Committee. Weaver said the clarification of campaign spending would prevent future controversies. Weaver was disqualified last year in his bid for ASG president on a spending technicality.

ASG also announced three major concerts to be presented this Office filing deadline extended until Tuesday

The filing deadline for student government and related offices has been extended until 4:30 p.m. Tuesday. Yesterday was set as the original deadline.

Student members of the Academic Council, representatives-at-large from the academic colleges to the Associated Student Government Congress, a student regent, freshman class officers and freshman cheerleaders will be chosen in the primary and general elections set for Sept. 12 and Sept. 19.

Robert Meade, co-chairman of the ASG Rules and Elections Committee, said that most Academic Council and representative races were still in need of candidates.

"Practically no one has filed yet for student membership in the Academic Council from four colleges," Meade said. Of the College of Education, the College of Commerce, the College of Applied Arts and Health and the Ogden College of Science and Technology each has only one candidate for the council. Each college can elect one delegate and an alternate.

Requirements for students on the Academic Council are a 2.75 grade point average, 60 credit hours and a declared major.

Representatives-at-large to ASG Congress are to be elected from the Graduate College, the College of Education, the College of Applied Arts and Health and the Ogden College of Science and Technology. Other colleges' seats were filled last year, Meade said.

Representative qualifications are that the student be a resident at Western, not on probation, who has a 2.25 academic standing and has been in attendance at Western one semester immediately preceding his candidacy.

A meeting of all candidates who have filed for offices will be at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in the ASG Congress Room.

Astronaut makes first campus stop

By NANCY DAVIS

Western made history of sorts yesterday when it became the first campus visited by Col. James Irwin since he began his new program called Highflight after retiring from the U. S. Air Force and the space program.

Speaking to a near capacity crowd in the Downing University Center Theatre, Irwin explained that Highflight is a small organization that enables him to travel around the country and tell people of the scientific advancements of the space program and the spirit of God.

"I have always wanted to become a pilot," said Irwin, "and I believe the Air Force has been a great career with many opportunities. I have always felt closer to God flying in high places in the sky."

In 1966 Irwin joined the space program and moved to Houston to begin his basic indoctrination program. Irwin cited the three basic preparations for the flight of Apollo 15 as the "preparation of body, the preparation of mind and the preparation of the spirit."

Irwin stressed the preparation of spirit in particular. "I have always been a Christian, but my awakening came upon my trip to the moon," said Irwin. Irwin said he regarded the trip as a truly religious experience.

The talk was followed by a film of the highlights of the Apollo 15 mission narrated by Irwin. The film covered the highlights of the flight from takeoff to splashdown.

Irwin presented President Dero Downing with a photograph of the lunar module, the land rover and Irwin working on the surface of the moon. "I want to present this to Western Kentucky University with my testimony that God was there,"

Irwin said.

During the question-and-answer period, Irwin drew a comparison between the exploration of the moon and the south pole in response to a question about the history of man's discoveries.

Irwin said he believes the initial discovery period is over for the moon. The next time we visit the moon it will probably be for an extended period of time for research purposes after we have visited another planet such as Mars, he added.

Answering a question about the cost for further advancement of the space program, Irwin stressed the importance of the advancement of space technology. It has expanded every other endeavor by man on the earth,

Entertainment schedule to include 'Chicago'

By AL CROSS

Western's fall entertainment picture was cleared up somewhat this week by Mike Fiorella, ASG activities vice president, who said three big-name rock groups and two special shows are tentatively scheduled for Diddle Arena.

A bit of nostalgia will kick off the fall entertainment schedule. Buffalo Bob and "Howdy Doody," a show which has been well-received at other campuses, will be here Oct. 3. Tentative plans call for no admission charge.

The following night, Oct. 4, the jazz-rock group Chicago will present the first fall concert, free to all students with their ID's. Prices for non-students have not been determined.

Jethro Tull, with flutist Ian Anderson, will bring their unique style to Western Oct. 26. The English group's appearance starts ten days of pre-homecoming activities, which include comedian Pat Paulsen Nov. 1, the Beach Boys in concert Nov. 3, and a homecoming dance Nov. 4. Fiorella hopes to book a "good group from a larger city" for the dance. The Tull and Beach Boys concerts will have an admission charge.

In addition to the concerts and shows, ASG plans to have Daniel Ellsberg of Pentagon Papers fame on campus Oct. 16 to inaugurate the 1972-73 ASG lecture series.

Plans for the second semester are still sketchy, but Fiorella said there would be "at least two concerts, and we're hoping to have Roberta Flack for one of them."

ASG has been budgeted $28,000 for entertainment this year, the same amount as last year.

Oldham to speak at First Baptist

Athletic Director John Oldham will be the speaker at the Sunday morning services at the First Baptist Church, Chestnut and 12th streets.

Most of the WKU football team will also be in attendance as part of the first annual Squad Day sponsored by the church for the football team and its coaches.

Squad Day, part of the church's Task Force '73 program geared toward the college student, includes a luncheon after the morning service.

A spokesman for the church said the day was designed to honor the team and help them get started on their season.

Both Oldham and Head Football Coach Jimmy Feix are deacons of the church.

'Twain' to be staged here Tuesday

Mark Twain lives again through John Chappell's characterization in "Mark Twain on Stage."

Chappell will re-create the role of the American writer-philosopher-humorist for the second time at Western. The performance is billed Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Van Meter Auditorium.

With such lines as, "In the first place, God made idiots. This was for practice. Then he made School Boards," Chappell delivers the satirical humor of Twain in a 1910 setting.

Chappell began his work on the characterization of Twain in 1968 after he secured the approval of

Hal Holbrook, creator of the role in the Tony Award-winning "Mark Twain Tonight." Holbrook has since commented that Chappell's performance is "fantastically genuine... a living, spontaneously seen Mark Twain."

Chappell, originally from North Carolina, has appeared in many theater presentations including the lead role in America's longest-running outdoor drama "The Lost Colony."

Admission for students, faculty, staff and their families is $1 at the door. General public will be charged $1.50. Advance tickets are available at the Garrett Conference Center information desk. The program is sponsored by the University Center Board.

SNEA to meet next Wednesday

The Student National Education Association (SNEA) will hold a get acquainted meeting next Wednesday in the College of Education auditorium. The meeting will begin at 4 p.m. and is expected to last about an hour. All interested students are invited.

Deadline past

Administrators miss completion date

People who work on newspapers are too familiar with deadlines. The nature of their work dictates that they must live with them every day.

Students are familiar with deadlines. They must abide by them in completing test and term papers or face the penalties.

Almost everyone around a university has to live with deadlines.

One would only naturally assume that administrators also face deadlines — particularly when working on projects such as Western's new catalog.

You'd never know it, though, by the actions of some.

The new catalogs were originally to have been published last spring.

They weren't.

They still haven't been.

"Necessary copy revisions" is the reason cited for the delay.

It is true that the spring semester was a busy period of changes that would affect material in the catalog. The revision of the general education guidelines by the Academic Council and the restructuring of the entire mass communications curriculum were just two of these "necessary copy revisions."

The important revisions which affected many students only made it more frustrating when students had to register for classes without the new catalog. It was especially confusing to freshmen and transfer students to be told the catalog they used to choose courses and programs was actually not the catalog under which they were registering.

Late catalogs are in danger of becoming a tradition at Western. This is the second time in two years that they have failed to appear when they were needed.

If a student were as consistently late with his assignments as these administrators appear to be with theirs, his head would surely roll.

Still, a comparison of student and administrative deadlines may be unfair, because there is one major difference between them — students are used to meeting theirs.

ASG should think ahead

The Rules and Elections Committee of Associated Student Government yesterday continued a regrettable tradition of Western's student government.

The committee extended the filing deadline for candidates for student government offices.

Such extensions would not be necessary if more realistic deadlines were set in the first place.

Four days to file, as was originally scheduled for this election are not enough for many students.

In elections such as this one, where freshman offices are at stake, more time is needed to inform them of the functions of student government. Also scheduled are the election of student regent and academic council members, both of paramount importance.

Time should be allotted to allow as many qualified students to file as possible.

Such short filing periods only help to perpetuate conditions which allow a small group of people to remain in control of student government.

A service to readers

'Letters' column provides forum

The Herald stated its letters to the editor policy in its Freshman Orientation issue, but due to the number of students who had not returned to campus at that time, we felt it would be wise to state it again.

The Herald welcomes comments from its readers concerning articles which appear in the Herald or any aspect of campus life.

"Letters to the editor" was established to help the newspaper serve the campus community

Through it, opinions other than those of the Herald editors, are given a public airing.

Because we believe that the letters column should always be a forum for our reader's views, we do not allow our editorial policy to dictate those letters which appear in the Herald. Sometimes space requirements may prevent a letter from being published, but again if a letter does not appear in the Herald it is not because it differs from our editorial position.

All letters to the editor should be typewritten if possible and, because of space requirements, should not exceed 250 words. To provide

Center Board doesn't offer 'grab bag' fare

With the distribution of a pamphlet outlining its offerings this year, the University Center Board has set an example which Associated Student Government would do well to follow.

The board has presented early in the semester detailed information about entertainment which it will offer students for the year.

If the University Center Board can do this why can't ASG?

At each registration, students give ASG $1.50 for entertainment which, for all they know, will never be presented or which possibly will be cancelled.

Many students have griped about the $1.50 fee since it was initiated. If students knew at the beginning of each semester how ASG was planning to spend their money, they wouldn't complain, at least not as much.

Few people would buy a package sight unseen. Yet, this is exactly what ASG expects from Western students.

ASG would find it much easier to sell a bargain rather than peddle promises.

Apparently the Center Board has learned more in one year than student government has in six.

Congratulations, we give a hoot and don't pollute

The Kentucky Air Pollution Control Commission (KAPCC) recently told two state universities and 26 other state agencies to clean up the smoke emissions from their heating plants.

Thanks to early planning by Western officials, WKU is not faced with such an ultimatum.

Murray and Eastern were among the offenders told to cut the amount of pollutants emitted by their heating plants. Both schools use coal for fuel.

These incidents have created a very sticky problem for the state. It can't very well shut down a university, but according to law can't allow the pollution either.

While the universities will try to comply with the law, it will be difficult.

Because of the foresight of its planners, Western, fortunately, is not bothered with such problems.

If election is close

College vote may be important

By MICKEY NEEL

The college vote could be a crucial factor in this year's presidential race if the race results in a close election, according to a recent study conducted by the College Poll.

Based on current statistics on college student voter registration, the poll was conducted by the Greenwich Research Center of New York. The center has been polling college students since 1968 concerning their attitudes on political, social and economic issues.

This college poll, which was based on a scientifically designed cross section of America's 8 million college students, found that nearly seven out of 10 college students have already registered to vote in the November presidential election.

This would mean about 5.6 million collegians may cast their vote this fall, and that total could increase as a result of intensified registration drives underway and planned for the fall on the nation's campuses.

Registration figures show that college students are registering to vote by a larger percentage than any other segment of the youth population, and nine out of 10 students indicate that they intend to vote in the 1972 election.

With more than one month of registration time left plus the continuation of the voter drives, especially among the McGovern backers, it is possible that the college registration statistics could be the highest of any voting group.

The significance of this large new bloc of student votes is based upon the possibility of a close election.

In 1968, Richard Nixon defeated Hubert Humphrey by approximately 500,000 votes. In 1960, John F. Kennedy's plurality over Richard Nixon was less than 150,000 votes. In 1948, Harry Truman's upset victory over Thomas Dewey was by less than 3 million votes.

The 8 million students in America could provide a possible key bloc of votes if the election is close.

The registration statistics show that those votes are now available, and with less than 20 per cent of the students registered as Republicans, it seems that at this point a majority of the college vote would go to the Democratic ticket.

Huddleston criticizes opponent's 'cynicism'

State Sen. Walter (Dee) Huddleston officially opened the campus Democratic headquarters Monday expressing the hope that 1972 would be a Democratic year in Kentucky and the rest of the nation as well.

Huddleston is a candidate against former-Gov. Louie Nunn for the U.S. Senate seat of the retiring John Sherman Cooper.

Huddleston criticized Nunn for what he called a "cynical approach to politics." A new order in government is needed, he said, with the emphasis placed on the needs of the people.

The Elizabethtown Democrat called for voters to reject the candidate whose "record of performance is one of broken promises."

Huddleston's remarks included a denunciation of President Richard Nixon. According to Huddleston, Nixon said that a president who failed to end the war in Vietnam within four years ought to be defeated in his bid for a second term. He urged voters to take Nixon at his word.

The Bowling Green campaign stop was one of the first legs of Huddleston's tour of the western Kentucky area.

ASG executives lose vote

Academic Council increases student representation

As a result of recent action by the Board of Regents, students have received greater representation on the Academic Council.

Student representation on the council was increased from two voting members to six voting members and three non-voting members by the regents.

Previously the Associated Student Government president and a vice president had voted on the council. Now a representative from each of the University's six academic colleges votes on the council and the ASG president and the two vice presidents have become non-voting associate members.

ASG president Ed Jordan said he was in favor of the change from the beginning, even though it cost him his vote on the council. He said the change had increased overall student representation on the council and that the ASG officers still had all the privileges of a member, except voting.

The Academic Council is a policy recommending body. It studies and makes recommendations on matters concerning curriculum, attendance, student grievances or other academic related matters.

It is composed of 49 voting members - 13 ex-officio members, 31 elected or appointed members and five department heads. All other department heads and academic heads fulfill the function of associate members on the council.

The body was established at Western in the fall of 1966.

Talisman staff plans organizational meeting

The second meeting of the Talisman staff will be Wednesday night at 8 in Room 124, Downing University Center.

Last Wednesday night the yearbook's editors met for the first time with prospective staff members.

About 40 persons attended that meeting, according to Judy Radford, Talisman editor. The theme for this year's yearbook was discussed, along with suggestions for improvements and changes in the book.

David B. Whitaker, director of publications, told those present that a $180 scholarship would be awarded next spring to the two staff members, besides the editors, who worked most diligently on the yearbook.

Miss Radford said no one expressed a desire to work with the department heads, seniors, Associated Students, Board of Regents and College Heights Foundation sections. The yearbook contains 36 areas of concentration.

One disappointing fact, Miss Radford said, was that although the meeting was announced on all the local radio stations and WBKO-TV, and was published in the College Heights Herald, many campus organizations failed to send representatives.

"We feel that every organization and group should appoint someone as a contact to work with the Talisman to make sure they get proper coverage," she said.

Final drop-add

day is Wednesday

The last day to register for a reduced program and to drop or add a course without a grade is Wednesday.

Friday, Sept. 22, is the last day to drop a course with a WP or WF depending on the quality of work at the time the student drops the course. Courses dropped after this date will result in a grade of F unless there are extenuating circumstances. A three-member faculty committee will render judgment on any appeal.

Furthermore, students who drop a course after the last day on which a course may be added may not enroll in a second bi-term course.

Rupp in rare form in visit to Western

By LEO PECKENPAUGH

Adolph Rupp, the baron of Kentucky basketball, was in rare form at the first Hilltopper Hundred Club luncheon yesterday. In a short talk to the Western "booster club," Rupp, who has been named president of the new Memphis Tams of the American Basketball association, touched "lightly" on many aspects of sports and life in general.

He opened his talk by citing the "reasons" he was forced to retire from the head coaching position at Kentucky, a job which he held for 42 years, winning nearly 900 games. "People kept thinking I retired because of my old age," said the 70-year-old basketball genius. "But I retired because of health problems. The University got sick of me."

Rupp said that after he retired there was a fellow named Finley who kept nagging him to accept a position with his newly acquired basketball team.

"He (Charles O. Finley, owner of the Tams and a couple of other professional sports teams) kept calling me and persuading me to accept the position. And everytime he called he had a little something extra to offer me," said Rupp. "He called one morning and my wife told me there was a long distance phone call for me and I told her to tell them to 'go to hell,' Rupp continued.

"I didn't want to go pro," exclaimed Rupp in his sometimes harsh voice, "and I kept fighting them until I finally decided it would be best. But I'll tell you one thing. I am still an amateur at heart and don't think otherwise."

Rupp continued his harsh indictment of professional interference in the college ranks. "I have always thought it was wrong and I will continue to fight pro interference," Rupp said.

Rupp said he began playing basketball at the age of 12. And the Baron said that basketball was originally invented to keep football players in condition.

But by working closely with Dr. James Naismith, the man who was responsible for the game, Rupp said he gained invaluable knowledge of the game. "I got a lot of ideas from Naismith," said Rupp "and from the very first time I started playing basketball I never had a losing season."

But perhaps Rupp's strongest statement of the day came on the

Tomorrow's scrimmage gives fans preview of defending OVC champs

By TRAVIS WITT

With the season opener only a week away, Western football fans will be treated to a full-game rehearsal scrimmage at 1 p.m. tomorrow in the L. T. Smith Stadium.

Topper head coach Jimmy Feix said he hopes to simulate a regular game in every way except length. Ohio Valley Conference officials will work the scrimmage which Feix said will be the last filmed work before the opener with Appalachian State the following Saturday.

Two goals Feix hopes to accomplish by staging this scrimmage are to get timing down and to improve the teamwork. "Before," he said, "we had been working on assignments, individual techniques and skills."

Feix said he encourages anyone interested in the 1972 Toppers to come out and see the team play tomorrow. The squad dressed in red will be the team Feix expects to open the season with next Saturday. The squad dressed in white will be freshmen, reserves and other varsity players.

Western won the OVC championship last year with a 6-1-0 conference record, the only loss coming to conference co-runner-up Middle Tennessee.

The Toppers scored 29 points more than any other OVC team last year and only Tennessee Tech yielded less. Western allowed 100 points scored against them while Tech led the conference by allowing only 89.

Western's defensive secondary, which led the nation in pass defense last year yielding only 57.7 yards per game, is back in its entirety. All-OVC selection Bob Morehead, Mike McCoy and Wilson Chapman are all back. The trio last year combined for 12 of the team's 16 interceptions and two touchdowns.

Also back this year is All-OVC quarterback Leo Peckenpaugh, who threw for 864 yards and 11 touchdowns and rushed for 159 more yards and three more TD's.

Peckenpaugh will be aided greatly by Clarence Jackson and John Embree, two tailbacks who have been piling up yards since their freshmen year two years ago. Jackson last year rushed for 664 yards while leading the team in scoring with 42 points. He also set a league record when he rushed for 297 yards in a single game against Butler. In two years Jackson has compiled 1067 yards, 16 touchdowns and 96 points.

Embree last year scored 18 points subject of winning. In reference to the adage "it's not whether you win or lose it's how you play the game," he said, "Gawd, that's a sorry philosophy. The object of the game is to win. Why do you have scoreboards?"

Rupp concluded his talk comparing America's free enterprise system and success in athletics. "Kentucky has senators and congressmen in Washington that are asleep. I am a farmer and every year they send me a list of how much corn, tobacco or wheat I can grow. That's free enterprise!" he asked. "We're on the outside looking in. They tell us how to run the program," he continued.

"We're teaching free enterprise in sports. Hell, when a guy is out on the field or court in trouble, we can't tell him what to do or how to do it," said Rupp comparing athletics to life.

Rupp told the Hundred Club he was optimistic about the quality of college level basketball in Kentucky. "There is room for five or six good teams in Kentucky," he stated, "The more competition we have the better it is going to be."

And finally with football season about to begin, the Baron had a few comments on that subject. "Why Coach John Ray is one of the most optimistic persons I know. He's as optimistic as Hitler. I don't know but I think he is going to win," the former coaching great said sarcastically. Ray is head football coach at the University of Kentucky.

Others to watch in tomorrow's scrimmage and in next week's opener are Darryl Smith, Tommy Turner and Porter Williams—all three excellent receivers.

Coach sees improvement for Tops baseball team

By VERENDA SMITH

The recent Ohio Valley Conference ruling which split the baseball conference games to include fall action may prevent some rain-outs, but it also will prevent athletes from participating in both baseball and football this fall.

However, only one Western player has forsaken the diamond for the gridiron, leaving several fine returning veterans to form the nucleus of the Toppers' team. Leo Peckenpaugh, starting quarterback on the football team, will miss the fall schedule, but will return next spring, Coach Jim Pickens said.

The pitching rotation will feature starters Greg Stahl, southpaw Mike Grubb and Jeff Ralph. Leading the team offensively will be Steve Long, an all-conference performer who batted .408 last season, and Jack Glasser, who has hit at least .300 for the past three seasons. Also returning to the line-up will be infielders Steve Tate, Neal Mills and Bill Strong.

Many players will be stinging the ball across Denes Field this fall for the first time. When asked what he thought of this year's recruits, Coach Pickens stated, "We feel that the talent is there—the only problem is gaining maturity and experience quickly enough to go along with our seasoned veterans."

Athletic program expands; riflery now a varsity sport

Riflery has become Western's newest sport.

In announcing the recent approval for varsity status by the University's Faculty Athletic Committee, President Dero Downing praised the outstanding record of the team in recent years.

John Oldham, athletic director, said he was delighted to see the athletic program at Western expand. "I am most happy to see riflery as a varsity sport," he said. Although riflery has not been a varsity sport at Western in the past, the University's participation in the sport goes back to more than 40 years.

M/Sgt. Wilson L. Farmer, coach of the Hilltopper team, foresees a good 1972-73 season, even though Western competes in the Kentucky-Tennessee League, considered one of the toughest in the nation.

Seven regulars from the 1971-72 team return this fall, including senior Sue Lausten, a two-time

Aiding Pickens in blending the raw talent of the recruits with the seasoned veterans will be Assistant Coach Buck Sydnor.

Coach Pickens is enthusiastic about the performance he expects from the baseball team this season. "We believe that we are going to be stronger in pitching this year, and generally I expect an over-all improvement over last year," Pickens said. "The team is progressing along, we're anticipating a fine season, and we're looking forward to the opening game here with Eastern on Sept. 22," he added.

Irwin lands at Western

Irwin said. He added that the future of the space program depends on the coming generation.

Irwin was also asked about the future of the astronaut training program. "I would like to see more and more young people getting into the program; however there is no recruiting going on now. But the opportunities in this program are expanding such as the space shuttle program that will arise in the future," said Irwin.

In addition, the last Apollo mission will be in December of this year and Irwin explained that a new series named the Skylight mission will begin next year.

Although Irwin believes that the trip to the moon was a remarkable experience he said that it was good to get back to earth. He said it took about 10 days to get back to normal, but there were no real problems for any of the crew.

Irwin's appearance on campus was co-sponsored by the Interfraternity Council and launched the 1972-73 University Lecture Series.
